Motivating High Performance Sales with Incentive Compensation & Rewards

Motivating high performance in sales teams is a growing issue in the pharmaceutical industry. The environment is getting tougher and incentivizing the right behaviors is becoming more challenging. These challenges are compounded by a number of factors that many other industries do not face including government regulations, sales channel proliferation, limited access to traditional buyers and transforming operating models.

Talent structures have had to evolve to meet the needs of today's broad set of buyers and influencers. Now it's not only Field Sales Reps, but Inside Sales, Key Account Managers and Channel Partners who all need to be measured and rewarded in a motivating way. Determining the right pay mix for these sales professionals is critical to success. Aggressive compensation can motivate stronger sales results while excessive incentives can lead to undesirable behaviors. This is all against a backdrop of continual market growth, ever-changing value areas and fierce competition, where incentive plans need to be regularly evaluated and redesigned to succeed.

Customer Case Studies

End-To-End Incentive Compensation for 2000+ Reps

Our client, a top 25 global Pharma company, was entering newer therapeutic areas which impacted sales performance design. The client was looking for support to manage all key IC operations including sales crediting, goal setting, eligibility, payouts and reporting. Axtria developed simulations for payout curve designs and plan structure modelling scenarios with Amazon Redshift powering large scale data processing.

IC Transformation for a Complex Sales Structure

A Fortune 500 company was facing inefficiencies in sales force deployment leading to significant delays in incentive payments, increased frustration with the field force, and poor sales performance visibility. Axtria implemented a robust business rules engine to manage alignment, crediting and eligibility rules and scenarios for over 1200 reps, across 24 sales teams. Through the implementation Axtria streamlined the client's sales crediting and eligibility processes resulting in 50% cost reduction and improvement in IC payments cycle time by 100%.
